

◆ {{SUBSECTION_HEADING}}

{{BODY_PARAGRAPH}} The body page on a recto folio mirrors the verso layout. Notice the binding gutter is on the left here, giving extra inner margin for the spine.

Continue body copy. Em-dashes — like these — and italicized terms such as Mercury in Gemini render gracefully in Cormorant Garamond.

◆

{{PULL_QUOTE}} — A single beautiful sentence from this chapter, set apart with delicate gold rules above and below.

The narrative resumes after the pull quote. Use sparingly: at most one per chapter, ideally on a recto page where the eye lands first when turning.

A second resuming paragraph keeps the reader anchored. Body text can run for several paragraphs without ornament; the corner marks alone provide enough framing.

